Music up and under: dance band, driving rhythms

Announce: Beth Mogan was born with muscular dystrophy and uses a power scooter to get where she needs to go. She loves going to concerts and plays and talking with her friends about what she's seen. To her, the arts are about a sense of community.

Mogan: You can watch TV and see concerts on TV nowadays, but you don't get that full feeling of all the people around you and the energy, and it's just real exciting for me.

Announce: Concerts and plays are what energizes her, and that, she says, is priceless.

Mogan: I get very excited and looking forward to going to a concert, so to put a price tag on that, you really can't, and so when a business wants to say, "Well, gee why should we make that accommodation, that's pretty expensive," how can you put a price tag on entertainment, and how it makes somebody feel.

Announce: The arts. They're for everyone.
